AROUND THE WORLD

By the Associated Press

At Long Last--

Milwaukee, Wis. — It had to happen.

Miss Ruth James, 27, was demonstrating the gyrations of the jitterbug to a social center dancing class and slipped.

Her leg was fractured.

-Smoke Nuisance-

Evansville, Ind.—Lonzo Stokes, 39, came into a court as a spectator and left as a prisoner.

In the course of a trial, he lit a cigaret.

Judge John W. Spencer, Jr., sentenced him to 10 days in jail for contempt of court.

Outside Competition

Fiarmont, Minn. — Promoter Wally Richmond has ruled out rough stuff at wrestling matches here. The order came after two juvenile sharpshooters, armed with bean blowers, halted a match by peppering the contestants with BB shot.

An Unwise Owl

Lake Delton, Wis. — An owl paid with his life for a meal and cut off the current in this community for an hour and a half.

When a highline short-circuited, Mort Rodwell, utility employe, set out to find the trouble. Beside a sputtering wire was a seared, dead owl, a rabbit's head clutched in its claws.

-Ironing Tragedy-

Spencer W. Va. — A broken clothesline started a fire that destroyed one home and damaged another.

Mrs. Holly Harper was ironing in her kitchen when a line of drying clothes broke, dropping the garments into an open fire.

She and five children escaped with two sheets and a shotgun.

Meet The Champ

Tucson, Ariz — Mickey McCrorey, Deadwood, S. D., bulldogger here for Tucson's annual rodeo, was mistaken for an officious outsider by four townsmen.

In the ensuing fist fight McCrorey proved his prowess outside the arena as well as in. He bested all four, including an ambulance driver who required the services of a physician.

Job Hunting Marathon

Joliet, Ill. — This is the story Mrs. Florence Push told sheriff's deputies:

Twelve years ago her husband, Nick, pushed himself away from the breakfast table and said he was going out to look for a job. He failed to return until the other night.

"Well, I didn't get that job, can I come in?" said Push when his wife opened the door. He insisted when she refused, so deputies she summoned jailed Push on disorderly conduct charges.

THE STATE OF THE NATION

by Olin Miller

A University of California professor says Americans are suffering from alkalosis, a highly serious psychological affliction brought on by worrying. As we understand the professor, alkalosis is a sort of ingrowing halitosis of the spirit. He asserts, however, there is an easy and effective remedy. "All we have to do," he says, "is to stop worrying."

Dictators are bellowing and pawing up the dust; dark war clouds (sans silver linings) are boiling up on every far horizon; Uncle Sam again is sticking his nose up to his eyebrows into European affairs, and it seems to us little fellows that the big boys are getting ready to lay down our lives for democracy; congress is in session; economic ills are multiplying day by day, and life grows more complicated by the hour—and the professor tells us to stop worrying! The professor is amusing, but not very.

Squire Perkins says: "Did you ever notice th' hungrier a dog is, th' friendlier he is? Well, a man ain't much different."

Resolution To Aid Stephenson Is Voted Today

Indiana House Votes to Ask State Clemency Board to Hear Former Klansman.

Indianapolis, Feb. 27 (AP)—The house of the Indiana General Assembly voted 65 to 24 today for a resolution asking the State Clemency Commission to hold a special hearing for D. C. Stephenson, ex-Grand Dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan who is in the Michigan City penitentiary serving a life term for murder.

The resolution, introduced by five Democrats and four Republicans, received support from members of both parties after it had been debated hotly.

The resolution was signed by Reps. William Black of Anderson, Edward H. Stein of Bloomfield, Harry Muller of Anderson, J. Chester Allen of South Bend and George W. Wolf of Peru, all Democrats, and the following Republicans—Reps. Bert B. Mayhill of Delphi, Homer E. Beasley of Washington, Timothy C. O'Connor of Frankfort, and Ralph E. Hunter of Elizabethtown.

Rep. Black stated during debate that the proposed hearing would be held at the Michigan City penitentiary where Stephenson is serving the life term imposed when he was convicted at Noblesville in 1925 for murder in the death of Miss Madge Oberholtzer of Indianapolis.

Rep. H. H. Evans (R-New Castle), the majority floor leader, charged in a "protest" prepared for filing with house that a member of the legislature "was offered $300" to vote for the pending milk control bill.

Evans' protest charged that the appearance of a delegation in the house last week to urge passage of a bill that would extend the present milk control law for two years.

"One member," said Evans, "was offered $300 to vote for the bill and he said, "no, not for any sum."

The pending bill would extend the law until June 30, 1941.

Evans protest charged that the

Two Fingers Are Lost In Saw; Man Files For $5,000

A suit for $5,000 damages as the result of personal injuries has been filed in circuit court by Jones L. Anderson against Walter Kuhn and Morris Kuhn, who reside near Manilla.

Plaintiff avers that on February 27, 1937, upon the defendants' wishes, he was helping the Kuhns saw wood on the property of Annie Clark in Rush county.

Anderson contends that, while working, Morris Kuhn carelessly threw a piece of wood against a fence and it rebounded and struck the plaintiff's right hand, knocking his hand into the saw.

Fourth and fifth fingers of the hand were amputated and the third one was injured, according to Anderson who is seeking $5,000 damages from the Kuhns.

Judge William Marshall conducted a trial Monday in the case of Andrew W. Kincaid et al against Reuben Milligan, on check, after overruling defense motion for continuance. The court gave total judgment of $169.26 in favor of the plaintiff.

Commissioner filed report of sale of real estate for $3,000 to Walter and Maggie Perkins in the case of Elizabeth Baker et al against John F. Vance et al, for partition. Sale was confirmed and deed approved and ordered delivered.

In the case of Elizabeth Wallace et al against Leven E. Wallace et al, for partition and to quiet title, commissioners filed report of sale of lots 32, 33, 34, 35, 36 and 37 in the Berkley Park addition to Rushville to Orval L. Safewright for $162. Sale was confirmed and deed approved and ordered delivered.

Tammany Leader Hines Convicted on Racket Charges

James J. Hines (left), Tammany district leader, is shown as he left court in New York after he had been convicted on 13 counts of an indictment charging that he sold political protection to the policy racket. With him are defense attorneys Joseph P. Shalleck (center) and Lloyd P. Stryker. Stryker cried when the verdict was announced. Hines said, "Sure we'll appeal, and we'll win."

SUPREME COURT TODAY RULES IN FAVOR OF EMPLOYERS WHO FIRE WORKERS IN SIT-DOWN STRIKES

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP) — The supreme court condemned today the action of employes who seized their employer's plant in a sit down strike.

The decision, by Chief Justice Hughes, upheld the right of the Fansteel Metallurgical Corporation to discharge employes who seized two key buildings of the plant in a 1937 sit-down strike.

This and two other major decisions delivered today by the high tribunal were the first important defeats administered to the Labor Relations Board since enactment of the Wagner labor law in 1935.

In a decision by Justice Stone, it set aside an order by the board directing reinstatement of striking employes of the Columbian Enameling and Stamping Company, Inc., of Terre Haute, Ind.

Another decision, by Justice Roberts, set aside a board order directing the Sands Manufacturing company of Cleveland, O., to reinstate 48 employes.

Justice Stone asserted that the board's conclusion that the Columbian company had refused to bargain with a labor union was "without support."

Justices Black and Reed dissented to both opinions. Justice Frankfurter did not participate in either.

Roosevelt Sets High Record For Steering Ship Of State At Sea; Ocean Has Been Life-Long Hobby

BY EDDY GILMORE

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP)—President Roosevelt, the only chief executive to steer the ship of state frequently from a ship at sea, is piling up mariner's mileage like a clipper ship skipper.

When he returns from his present Caribbean trip, Mr. Roosevelt will have traveled more than 150,000 miles since taking office in 1933. Almost half of it has been on the sea.

William Howard Taft traveled 114,000 miles, but he arrived in the White House along with the automobile and much of his touring was on wheels.

The ocean is not incidental with Mr. Roosevelt. It has been a hobby and a part of his life since the days when he sat barefooted on his Grandfather Delano's stone wharf at Fairhaven, Mass., and dreamed of being a sailor.

It was only natural when he came to Washington first in 1913 he came as a naval official—assistant secretary of the navy. In that capacity he sailed to Europe on a destroyer during the World War.

His greatest summer pleasure is to slip into old clothes and a slouch hat and sail the North Atlantic at the helm of a seagoing sloop or schooner.

Seamen say he is a gifted navigator who could, if he had to, sit down and chart a course to faraway corners of the world.

George Washington's trip from Boston to Savannah in a carriage once marked as a high mark in presidential traveling but Mr. Roosevelt has been clocked at:

Hawaii and back, 1934—14,146 miles.

Buenos Aires and return, 1937—13,298 miles.

Incidentally, the President has confided to intimates he still thinks he's behind Mrs. Roosevelt

Place Changed For Chest Clinic To Be Wednesday

The annual mid-winter tuberculosis clinic will be Wednesday in the offices of Dr. Lowell M. Green, 127 West Third street, instead of the offices of Dr. J. E. Walther. This change was made on account of the illness of Dr. Walther's mother.

All tuberculosis patients and suspects are urged to be present in the morning so that all can be examined. Dr. E. M. Amos of Indianapolis will be the examining physician.

Lawyers Plan To Fight Long Term Facing J. J. Hines

New York, Feb. 27 (AP)—Legal maneuvers in the making today to stave off a possible long-term prison sentence for Tammany district leaders James J. Hines, whose conviction Saturday of selling political protection to a numbers racket also threatened to unseat a Tammany magistrate.

Apparently ignoring Mayor F. H. LaGuardia's ultimatum that he resign or face impeachment, Magistrate Hulon Capshaw declared he would welcome an investigation by the appellate division of Supreme Court, to which his case would go.

An appointee of two Tammny mayors, Capshaw was accused by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of having dismissed policy cases against henchmen of the slain Dutch Schultz at the behest of Hines, convicted of partnership with the erstwhile public enemy No. 1.

Although he admitted under cross-examination that he made an "error" in an earlier version of a policy trial, Capshaw denied at Hines' trial that he had been influenced improperly by the

France, Britain Recognize New Gov't In Spain

Both Democracies Act Quickly to Pull Last Prop from Tottering Loyalists.

London, Feb. 27 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain today announced "unconditional" British recognition of the nationalist regime as the legal government of Spain and said the French government would take similar action this afternoon.

Chamberlain, addressing the House of Commons, earlier said he was willing to call a world conference "as soon as ever I think it possible"—but added "the time has not arrived" for such a parley.

Paris, Feb. 27 (AP)—The French cabinet today voted unanimously for recognition of the nationalist rule of Generalissimo Francisco Franco as the legal government of Spain.

Paris, Feb. 27 (AP)—With the Spanish civil war virtually at an end—as acknowledged even by Spanish Republican circles in Paris—France and Britain sought today to insure Democratic influence on the new Spain by recognizing the Nationalist government of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

French Premier Daladier called his cabinet for the formal step toward establishment of diplomatic relations with Burgos, while in London the House of Commons assembled to hear the recognition announcement of Prime Minister Chamberlain.

Even the promise of the joint action, let alone its fulfillment, appeared to have pulled the last prop from under the tottering Republican regime of Premier Juan Negrin.

Paris circles close to the Madrid government said Negrin had accepted an armistice which was little more than an unconditional surrender of the last one-fourth of Spain still in Republican control.

President Manuel Azana, chief of what state there was left after 31 months of struggle between two theories as to how Spain should be ruled, left his headquarters in the Paris Spanish embassy last night.

He was headed for exile at the little French village of Collognessous-Saleve, on the Swiss frontier.

Behind him in the embassy vacated for occupancy by a Nation-

Check Abandoned Auto For Prints

Authorities are checking on the possibility that a stolen automobile abandoned here last week may have been driven to Rushville by Paul Pierce, escaped "lifer" from the state penitentiary.

Kermit Lewis of the state police examined this machine for fingerprints at a local garage Saturday, and the results were to be checked with Pierce's prints.

The automobile was stolen from St. Joe, Michigan, on February 21, the next day after Pierce disappeared from prison at nearby Michigan City.

After the Michigan machine was abandoned in Rushville, a local car was stolen and driven to Hamilton, O., where the thief exchanged it for a third automobile. The next theft attributed to the same man took place at Dayton, O., where the Hamilton car was abandoned and a fourth one stolen.

Republicans Show Enthusiasm Over Meeting On Friday

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 27—Republican gains in the last election coupled with hugely increased hopes for our victory in 1940, promised to make the annual mid-winter meeting of the Indiana Republican Editorial association at the Claypool hotel Friday one of the most successful in the organization's history.

County chairmen from all parts of Indiana have written to Neil McCallum, Secretary of the Association and also Secretary of the Indiana Republican State Central Committee, to ask for reservations. Special tickets can also be secured until Wednesday from Republican editors.

In recent years, it has been customary to make the mid-winter meeting a wide open affair, concluding with a large banquet, while the mid-summer meeting usually is attended only by the editors and their close friends.

Governor George W. Bricker of Ohio, who has loomed as a possible Republican presidential nominee since the meeting at which he spoke in Topeka, Kansas, will be the principal speaker at the dinner meeting, which

Wrecks Occupy Local Officers Over Week End

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Blackmore Escape When Car Skids Into Baltimore & Ohio Engine.

City police investigated five accidents, one an automobile-train collision, and made one arrest over the week end.

A local couple escaped serious injuries at 8:10 last night when their automobile skidded into a west bound B. & O. freight train at the Main street crossing.

Occupants of the machine were Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Blackmore, 1012 North Main street, the former a local agent for the Gulf Refining Company. Mrs. Blackmore was reported to have suffered bruises and shock. She was removed to her home. Her husband was not injured.

Traveling south on Main street, the car, on the left side, struck the engine of the freight train as Mr. Blackmore swerved his machine to the right to avoid crashing into an unidentified north bound car which crossed in front of the train, according to police report. After hitting the train, Blackmore's vehicle rammed into the nearby watchman's shanty. The small building was removed from its foundation and thrown against a parked car on Fourth street.

Officers failed to learn the identity of the driver of the north bound machine who swerved into the path of Blackmore. The car failed to stop after the accident.

Everett Cox and C. E. Likens, both of Indianapolis, were conductor and engineer respectively of the freight train involved in the accident.

A large tractor-trailer, which got out of the driver's control, did considerable damage on West Third street, near Spencer, about 5:30 Monday morning.

The truck was the property of the Emery Trucking company of Cincinnati and was operated by Jack Stoler of Indianapolis.

Stoler told Patrolman Richard Phillips that he was driving east on Third street and that he leaned over to turn off the fog light when the truck hit a car owned by Richard Cohee, badly damaging the machine which was parked at the curb.

The heavy truck then struck and broke off a city light pole and then knocked over a hog house in a lot east of the planing mill. The vehicle finally stopped after shearing off another light pole.

Three other accidents on the police list were of minor nature with no one injured.

J. R. Allen, 1110 North Willow street, driving a C. J. Loyd Poultry truck, collided with a machine operated by Emmett French, R. R. 1, Osgood, at the north entrance of the covered

Mortgage Exemption Blanks Are Ready

Hubert Alexander, county auditor, is calling attention to the taxpayers that they may file for their mortgage exemptions between March 1 and May 1.

The state board of tax commissioners has prescribed a new form to be used, which includes an additional affidavit. This year it is required that exemptions be made in duplicate.

Mr. Alexander stated that he has the new blanks in his office and can supply these to any one desiring them. These blanks may be filled out before any notary.

Ex-service men who are drawing compensation may have their poll tax charged off by presenting the necessary information from the Veterans Administration. This must be done each year.

Affidavits for soldiers' and widows' exemptions may be filed at this time.

The victory was Bloomington's seventh team championship since the inauguration of the state affair in 1921. Gripping And Entertaining Tribute to Nursing Profession

A moving, ofttimes gripping and constantly entertaining tribute to the profession of nursing is offered in "Four Girls in White," which opened yesterday at the Princess theatre where it will be shown again today.

Dealing as it does with the women's angle of hospital life, the new picture might be described as a feminine "Men in White," or "Young Dr. Kildare." Sustained by the discerning and understanding direction of S. Sylvan Simon, and enacted with a quiet conviction and sincerity by a splendid group of performers headed by Florence Rice, Una Merkel, Ann Rutherford and Mary Howard in the title roles, with Alan Marshal the male lead, "Four Girls in White" unfolds a narrative of compelling interest and dramatic intensity.

To Miss Rice falls the role of the girl who enters the profession of nursing as a means of getting either a wealthy doctor or patient for a husband. Shunned by her fellow nurses when her scheming results in the death of one of the other girls she ultimately redeems herself by risking her life for others in a train disaster.

Miss Rice has never been seen to better advantage than in her present role in which she is given an opportunity for a powerful dramatic portrayal. Una Merkel and Buddy Ebsen, as a comedy team, add an intermittent light touch to the narrative, Ann Rutherford and Mary Howard, are excellent as the remaining two "girls in white," and capable support is given by Kent Taylor as a wealthy patient and Jessie Ralph as the nursing superintendent.

S. Sylvan Simon has given the picture fine, sensitive direction, bringing it to a rousing climax that will defy the most blase with one of the most thrilling and spectacular train wreck sequences on record.

The story, original, was written by Nathalie Bucknall and Endre Bohem. Dorothy Yost did the screen play. Nat Levine produced for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Scribe Says Greensburg Fans Didn't Begrudge Lion Victory

(Greensburg News)

Knowing the circumstances Greensburg fans didn't begrudge Rushville her 38-22 victory over Newgent's Pirates at Rushville Friday night—that is not so terribly much. They just didn't like to lose the game.

However, the Lions needed the game to give them a 50-50 break on the season at 10 games won and 10 lost—and in reaching that balance they put the Pirates on the other end of the teeter board with the same 10-and-10.

The big pain was that, with Columbus meanwhile upsetting all dope buckets by upsetting Greencastle, Rushville climbed to undisputed third place in the South Central Conference—while the Pirates sneaked down in the cellar and locked the door.

Rushville was also playing for another Conference mark. While Greensburg fans had paid little attention to the Conference Scoring Parade, in which Pirate players do not figure so prominently, Rushville had been watching Sammie Young, center, who was sitting in second place beneath Stanley, of Connersville.

Rushville had figured out that Sammy needed 15 points to jump into the lead, and the fans were pulling for him to carry the flag. While it looked in the first quarter as if Max Pearsey were going to carry away scoring honors for the Lions, Young jumped into the lead in the second quarter and then couldn't have been headed by a thunderbolt. He pulled down 19 points without a struggle.

With only Davis appearing up to par—even he with not much luck on his shooting—but with Doggett hitting three fielders for the only Pirate able to touch more than one, practically everything the Pirates tried to do appeared to be wrong.

Their defense was no more closely knitted than a cheese wrapper, and their offense seemed to ram into a brick wall at about the 20-foot line. Time after time a Pirate stood wide open for a close shot, with no attempt made to get the ball to him. And shots that normally should have clinked for 2 fell dismally for zero.

It was Rushville's night, without argument, and although the Lions were not showing basketball of tournament form they had just enough of what it takes to make the Pirates look much worse than they were.

There wasn't much touch-and-go play, most of the game being devoted to more deliberate playing than is really expected nowadays. The third quarter opened on a race-horse brand of ball, but settled down in about two minutes to something the officials could follow.

SENATE LEADER IS ENCOURAGED OVER BUSINESS

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP)—The Roosevelt administration's effort to quiet business fears and encourage private investment gained impetus today from a statement by Democratic Leader Barkley of the senate that he had received word no general anti-monopoly legislation would be offered at this session of congress.

Barkley told reporters he had received this information from Chairman O'Mahoney (D-Wyo), of the special committee of legislators and government officials appointed to investigate monopoly and other econmic subjects.

The senate leader added, however, that the committee would ask additional funds—probably at least as much as the $500,000 appropriated for it last year—to continue its investigations.

Barkley's announcement was one of several apparent indications that the crop of new laws turned out at the present session of congress might be comparatively small.

Another was the statement of Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins, in an address last night at Des Moines, Iowa, that, "with the emphasis shifted from reform to recovery, this administration is now determined to promote that recovery with all the vigor and power at its command."

Hopkins said that "legislative reforms and new government activities," added to disturbing economic developments in this country and revolutionary developments abroad, had caused many business men to lose confidence.

He expressed conviction, however, that an environment in which private capital would be encouraged to invest could be created without compromising the administration's "great reforms."

Speaking privately, several senators said the desire of many Democrats for party peace would tend to hold the session's output of new laws to a minimum. Saying continued Democratic strife would impair the party's chances in the presidential campaign next year, they predicted congressional leaders would avoid dissension by compromise or complete elimination of some measures.

A survey of pending bills indicated to some veteran lawmakers that, aside from regular appropriation measures, less than a dozen important proposals were likely to be acted upon before the session ended.

These include measures to strengthen the army and navy, modify the Wagner Labor Relations act, revise the neutrality law, set up a new system of relief and public works, attack the railroad problem, expand the Social Security program and provide for reorganization of federal agencies.

The survey was made yesterday by Senator Barkley in a conference with committee chairmen, who include both supporters and critics of the administration.

Despite previous predictions that the session might continue into the summer, Barkley said after the conference that June 15 would be a "desirable" adjournment date.

He said the study showed that most important measures, including virtually all those recommended by President Roosevelt, would be ready for house or senate action next month. The senate would settle down to a steady pace next week, he predicted, when it begins consideration of the $358,000,000 army expansion bill, already approved by the house. This will be passed by midweek, the majority leader prophesied.

RESOLUTION TO GIVE STEPHENSON HEARING ADOPTED

board is now costing Indiana taxpayers $200,000 a year to maintain and that its only purpose is "to furnish a few fat jobs for a few New Deal parasites."

Indianapolis, Feb. 27 (AP)—Indiana's 81st general assembly headed into its final week today with much work yet to be done and still as divided against itself as when it met Jan. 5 with the Republicans in control in the house and the Democrats in the majority in the senate.

The legislature, limited by the state constitution to a 61-day session every two years, must adjourn a week from today. Liquor, gross income tax changes, election reform and the state budget are major subjects on which legislation still is to be enacted.

A tangle likely to delay last-minute procedure came up when Senator William E. Jenner of Shoals, Republican floor leader, said he had found two "boners" in the liquor bill the upper house had passed, 40 to 0, under suspension of rules Saturday.

Jenner said that upon reading the bill he discovored a provision which would let taverns run on Sunday, and a mistake in the title which would make the bill, if enacted into law, invalid in court.

The bill would close places selling liquor at midnight through the week and one o'clock on Sunday mornings an hour earlier than at present.

But in amending it, Jenner said, the senate inadvertently put in wording which would let them open at six o'clock Sunday morning.

Senator Jenner predicted the mistakes would be taken out after the bill is sent to a four-man conference committee to reconcile senate and house on changes the senate made. The bill has an emergency clause which would make it law as soon as the governor signed it.

A senate-house fight seemed probable over amendment of the gross income tax law to cut the rate to retail merchants. More than a week ago the house passed a bill to reduce this rate from one per cent to one half of one per cent a year and the retailers' exemption from $3,000 to $1,000.

Last week a crowd of retailers jammed the statehouse to support the reduction, while a crowd of farmers came to oppose it in a public hearing of the senate finance committee.

Yesterday Senator Jacob Weiss (D-Indianapolis), a committee member, said the body had agreed after conferring with Governor Townsend to propose a graduated scale in place of the flat half per cent slash. Under this plan, the rate—for barber and beauty shops, garages and other service estblishments as well as for retailers—would be three-tenths of a per cent on the first $15,000 and a tenth of a per cent more on each $5,000 additional up to top of two per cent on all over $130,000.

House Republicans have indicated that, should the senate oppose any of their pet measures, they will refuse to appropriate money to run the state the next two years. Bills for this purpose, providing for appropriation of about $84,000,000, now are in the House Ways and Means committee.

PROFESSOR SNORTS AT BELLOWLESS BULLS

Big Bend Park Area, Tex. (AP)—J. Frank Dobie, Texas university professor and writer of folklore, regrets that cattle breeders have "bred all the bellow out of the bull."

"The old longhorn bulls could lift sand upon their backs and necks with their forefeet, bellowing constantly as they worked themselves into the proper mood for fight," says Dobie, who was raised on a longhorn ranch.

"Acres of brush would be trampled before one bull succeeded in goring to death or whipping the other one and it was a grand spectacle.

"The modern Hereford can't bellow. He sounds like a sick cow calling her calf. No power behind his noise."

SNOWY ROADS BRING DEATH TO EIGHT IN INDIANA ACCIDENTS

By the Associated Press

Indiana counted at least eight persons dead today from traffic accidents on roads covered by heavy week end snowfalls.

The snow fall was heaviest in central Indiana. It reached depths of six and a half inches at Indianapolis, six inches at Vincennes and five inches at Terre Haute. Anderson unofficially reported eight inches.

More snow or rain was predicted for tonight and government weather forecasters said temperature might rise considerably above the freezing mark today but they would drop again tomorrow.

An automobile collision near Plymouth yesterday brought death to John Goodrich, 24, Peru construction foreman, and slight injuries to his wife, also 24.

Harold Stoops, 38, was injured fatally as a train struck an automobile in Indianapolis yesterday.

A headon collision of his automobile with a transport truck near Shoals caused the death of Martin J. Glascock, 51, Louisville policeman, yesterday.

Walter Weldon Bowman, 31, of Bloomington, hopping a ride on the back of a truck yesterday, fell off near Seymour and was killed.

J. A. Warneran, 52, of near Tipton was killed when struck by an automobile yesterday at Kokomo.

alist ambassador to France was a note of resignation, it was believed—a resignation to be announced after formal French-British recognition of Franco.

It was reported in political circles that Diego Martinez Barrio, president of the Spanish Cortes (parliament) and constitutional successor to Azana, would publish his own resignation after a conference at the embassy with Dr. Marcelino Pascuay Martinez and Pablo de Azcaratey Florez, Negrin's ambassadors to Paris and London, respectively.

Once these things were done, the only requirement for Franco to become absolute master of Spain would be to carry out the single proviso of the armistice said to have been reached Saturday.

That condition, Spanish Republican sources said, was that the Nationalist Generalissimo allow enough time to the French and British to remove Republican leaders from the last quarter of Spain.

It was expected to take several days for the 10,000 perosns said to have chosen exile to Franco's clemency to be brought to France aboard foreign ships.

When that is done the Spanish war will have run its course. Spain will have changed her form of government at a cost of more than 1,000,000 lives and devastation of half of the country. It is estimated that at least one generation will be occupied by reconstruction.

A war which has constantly threatened to spill over into the rest of Europe will have ended but the question of which way Franco will lean in the Democratic-Fascist choosing of sides in Europe still may trouble France and Britain.

Theirs was a problem of countering the assistance Italy and Germany have given the Nationalists.

Dispatches from Madrid said several ministers already had left the Republican capital for the coast. Meanwhile, Franco supported the fiction of a continuing conflict by occasional shelling of Madrid and light air raids along the coast.

The Negrin government by decree provided passport facilities for all males between the ages of 17 and 55 who were not mobilized for war. Interpretation of this decree was lacking at Madrid, but here it seemed to fit into the reports of an impending exodus of government supporters.

Some sources pointed to the possibility that men of the fighting ranks might turn on their leaders if they were still at hand when surrender is announced.

MOST ASSEMBLIES IN SESSION HAVE LIQUOR TROUBLES

Chicago, Feb. 27 (AP)—Legislators of at least 30 states wrestled with liquor law problems today.

An Associated Press survey showed few bills passed but a host of measures pending on liquor taxes, licenses, sales control, local option, advertising, Sunday sales, roadhouses and closing hours.

Even in dry Oklahoma the senate passed a house bill to set up a permit system for importing liquor for medicinal, scientific or religious purposes, permitting doctors' prescription whisky, and aimed at obtaining federal aid to check illicit whisky running. Oklahoma, Kansas and Tennessee are the only "bone dry" states.

California heard a proposal for a $2 annual "drinker's license" and for a state farm for inebriates, also conflicting measures to extend and restrict closing hours and limit the number of licenses near schools and churches.

Arizona's legislature passed a bill transferring tightened liquor law enforcement from the tax commission to a new control division. It would limit bars according to county population.

Both South Dakota houses approved measure to padlock places where liquor law violations occurred.

Liquor tax or license increases were recommended in South Dakota, Pennsylvania, New York, Texas, North Carolina, Connecticutt, Maryland, North Dakota and Oregon.

A Maine measure would prohibit beer licenses to gasoline stations or places within 500 feet of them. In Pennsylvania one bill would establish a 300-foot dry zone around schools and churches, another would permit package beer sales in groceries and delicatessens. A Massachusetts legislator would ban candy and fruit stores from selling liquor. Iowa sought to stop beer sales in drug and grocery stores.

Other Iowa bills would eliminate "sitdown" beer drinking by forbidding chairs, booths or tables; prohibit all music, except radios, and serving of food in beer places. One South Dakota measure would halt the sale of 3.2 per cent beer and wine outside municipality limits, another would permit sale of intoxicants by the drink and package in the same place.

The New Hampshire senate killed a bill which would have allowed dancing in places where beer is sold. A North Dakota legislator sought to eliminate roadhouses by restricting sale of liquor to cities and villages. A Minnesota measure would forbid sale to women standing at a bar. The Idaho legislature defeated proposals which would have legalized liquor sales at clubs where lockers are rented.

Local option proposals were studied in Iowa, South Carolina, Indiana, New Mexico, Oregon, Colorado and Massachusetts.

Vermont and New Mexico sought to relax restrictions on Sunday liquor sales but Colorado, Massachusetts, Maryland and South Dakota considered tightening such laws. Week day closing hours caused debate in South Carolina, Indiana, Nebraska, New York and Minnesota.

Maine and Connecticutt proposed to prohibit billboard liquor advertising and Idaho, all liquor advertising.

A Coloradan sought to tighten the law designed to prevent minors from getting liquor, while Michigan and New Jersey measures would penalize minors claiming to be old enough to purchase liquor.

Liquor legislation oddities proposed included:

A Colorado bill to prevent employment of females in taverns; a Nebraska measure to prohibit "drinks on the house;" a North Carolina bill to levy 2½ per cent tax on gross receipts of county liquor stores, proceeds to go to schools to teach "evils of alcohol;" a Massachusetts proposition forbidding airlines to carry intoxicated persons.

Brookville, Ind., Feb. 27 (AP)—Mrs. Josephine Huff, Terre Haute, Ind., was injured fatally near here Saturday when an automobile in which she was riding with her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Montgomery, Indianapolis, skidded on ice-covered U. S. Route 52 and overturned.

Mrs. Huff and her daughter were taken to Harrison, Ohio, for medical attention by a passing motorist, but the mother died on the way.

Mrs. Montgomery was treated by a physician at Harrison, then taken to Bethesda hospital, Cincinnati.

Physicians at Bethesda hospital described Mrs. Montgomery's condition as "fair." She suffered a possible fracture of the jaw and lacerations on the face and legs.

Ontario, Calif. (AP)—In 1932 Mrs. C. C. Barnes bought and planted what she thought was an ordinary peach sapling. She was amazed when, in an off season, it budded well ahead of schedule and bore a fine crop of fruit.

FEWER YOUTHFUL CRIMINALS

The occasional reports of J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, are always interesting and sometimes they are heartening, especially when they show, as they have so often in recent years, that kidnapers are ultimately brought to justice, that this fiendish crime is of less frequent occurrence, and that the nation's supply of important public enemies is about exhausted.

Even more hopefully inspiring is a batch of statistics, made public recently, showing that great progress is being made toward the solution of the problem of juvenile delinquency, the one most dangerous threat to the moral standards of the nation.

Mr. Hoover's report is more than interesting; it is vital. Seven years ago the most marked tendency toward crime was manifested at the age of seventeen. Within four years the age had been moved up to nineteen, while today it is twenty-one.

Not the least significant feature of the report is Mr. Hoover's explanation of the factors that have contributed toward this improvement. Perhaps the most important is the CCC, which has taken impoverished boys from the streets and the highways, given them work in a wholesome atmosphere and removed them from the path of temptation.

Since its organization, the CCC has inspired little but praise. It has contributed in incalculable measure to the development and conservation of natural resources; it has brought essential financial aid to thousands of homes. Above all else, however, it has helped to conserve and safeguard the young manhood of the nation.

Other factors in the improvement have been the YMCA and many boys' clubs. Their work, through which youngsters are gradually being educated away from crime, is deserving of the highest praise.

IT NEED NOT BE OUR WAR

War may be just around the corner, as feared by the prophets of gloom. But it need not be a war involving the United States.

This country has had one excellent sample of the sheer futility of any American attempt to make the world safe for democracy. It therefore should stop thinking in terms of international salvation and confine itself strictly to the defense of its own shores against the remote possibility of foreign invasion.

Few observers will be so naive as to believe that the interests of American democracy can be furthered by injudicious interference with Europe and the Orient, or that free government in the Western Hemisphere can be made more secure by the mere adoption of a belligerent, aggressive attitude.

To be sure, America stands, and will continue to stand, for the democratic ideal. This, however, need not entail either the gratuitous assertion of moral superiority or the false assumption that we are in any way obligated to pull Europe's chestnuts out of the fire.

If America remains aloof from the crafty, poker-faced diplomats of Europe, the ultimate welfare of New World democracy will be most effectively assured. And this is but another version of the preferred foreign policy of staying home and minding our own business.

POLITICAL GRAFT

When the administration at Washington charges users of the mails three cents postage to mail a two-cent letter, and then dumps hundreds of thousands of tons of postage-free political — or governmental, they're the same — propaganda into the mails to influence the thoughts of the electorate, the practice is nothing but political graft.

Postmaster General Farley, whose department — he wouldn't know what it is all about — reports that it would have had a profit of $43,000,000 in the last fiscal year had all the New Deal propaganda dumped into the mails postage free been paid for, now has the brass to ask Congress to extend the three-cent postage rate for another two years.

If Congress wants to help business and recovery, it will throw the Farley suggestion in the ash can, where it belongs, and then proceed to restore two-cent postage over a Roosevelt veto.

Three-cent postage is as great a detriment to recovery as the pernicious payroll taxes. Every business concern worth its salt is a generous user of the mails, and to have its postage bill upped 50 per cent for the sole benefit of the political gentry at Washington, is an outrage.

Americans once started a great fuss over a tax on tea. If there is American blood left, now would seem the time to prove it, and it might as well be over three-cent postage.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

by GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

CHAPTER 35

The Gipsy's Prophecy

No sooner had Peter gone to Spain, than the full storm broke, the revolt started. Rebel ships from the North African colony landed their foreign legionaires at Algeciras, and seized the province of Huelva. Soon, the rebels held control of Spanish Morocco, the Canaries, the Balearic Islands, most of southwest Spain and Navarre, the large area north of Madrid.

In Madrid itself, Petrel read, there were many with insurgent sympathies, so that lorry loads of Militiamen, bristling with arms, patrolled the streets. Private, commandeered cars, spilling Militiamen from steps and wings, dashed up and down Calle Acala, searched houses suspected of harboring Fascists, and fired at those appearing in their windows, if the search had proved unsuccessful. Orders were broadcast, dismissing officers of the army from lieutenants, upwards. Martin Rowdon heard the rattle of Militia machine guns, attacking the Montana Barracks, above the heavily censored report which Peter's voice read to him, from the press room. She read Peter's dispatches. Once, he managed to fly over to the French side of the frontier, where the beaches were still filled with holidaymakers, who sat "watching the war." He sent photographs, to his paper, which he had obtained in France, of the rebel troops under General Davila, attacking Irun. They showed peasants in blue overalls, slung rifles, and red berets; Carlists in khaki, with white skiing socks, and Sam Browne belts; women, who had joined in the rebellion, and were armed, like men. Soon after Peter made this expendition, they learned that his plane had been commandeered by the Government forces.

Petronella met some of the refugees, among them, her friends the Lorillos from Madrid. They arrived at Victoria Station with the equivalent of a few pounds, in pesetas, a pathetic bundle of clothes, and two tiny suitcases. This was all they had been able to save from the beautiful villa which she remembered as their home. She remembered that they had a son.

"Where is Emilio?"

"We do not know, Miss Mallone. He is fighting. It was his duty," the mother answered. She accepted Petronella's invitation to stay at the cottage, with a storm of grateful weeping. Peter had managed to send a letter by these friends. It had escaped the censor. In it he said: "Tony has turned up, so we're both staying at the 'Bristol,' and see a good deal of each other. It is lucky for me. He has a friend in the Telefonica building, and I may find it easier to make, and receive calls, with his influence. He says Spain will be an international battle ground, before this grim business is settled. I asked him if he had any message for you, old dear. I know you'll want to know his answer. He said, 'My congraluations, that's all.' But he talked about you. He said it seemed odd to find me alone. He feels, as I do, that you've chosen to do the most sane thing you could. With such a job, he couldn't help making you a poor husband. And even though he loves you ,he couldn't give it up. But he wants you to be happy."

"Even though he loves me," thought Petronella, and tried, but failed, to feel scornful of Tony's exaggeration.

Staring Headline

Thereafter, Peter's letter was long and interesting, filled with calmy stated details of the revolution. The fact that no censor stood beside him, finger on switch, had not tempted him to exaggerate. One or two scenes of brutality, which he had seen, he recorded. But the letter gave an impresison of truth, which other screaming headlines, announcing widespread atrocity, had not. Martin Howdon thanked Petrel, when he received three of the four sheets, and published most of it as an "uncensored letter from Spain." The news became worse. Despite Peter's private assurance that "most of the bombs they are dropping are dubs, and do little damage," Petronella found it impossible not to be anxious. In the streets, every few yards, Peter was told to "Manos arriba," hands up, and had his papers examined.

James was very understanding of her wretchedness. This was the first real danger Peter had encountered, since she left him. He knew her superstitious fear that fate might, seizing this opportunity, separate them from one another permanently. But there was an additional reason for her anxiety which he did not understand. She had not told him Tony was in Madrid.

"I'm sorry. It's hell for you. But there is nothing you can do about it," he sympathized unhappily.

"No, nothing." He blamed the exaggeration of her fear on the Lorrillos. "Can't you send them somewhere else? It is enough to get on your nerves having them in the house, always talking about Spain?"

"No. They haven't anywhere to go."

One evening, during the second week in August, James went to the shop, where she had told him to call for her. He found that she had gone to the Post Office to telephone.

"No bad news?" he asked Tamara quickly. She indicated the evening paper, and a staring headline.

"No—just that." He read: "Two British journalists reported killed in air over Madrid. Grave mistake by anti-aircraft."

"There are dozens of journalists in Madrid. But, of course, she is calling up Mr. Rowdon for news."

"Poor Petrel." But Tamara shook her head, with the same nonchalance, and smiled at him.

"Poor James Randall! Until Peter marries and lives more often in London, it will always be like this for you. Half her attention! Half her thoughts, half her love. You must love her very much to be content with it. I should think you would be very fed up with Peter."

Trembling

He looked at her. He flushed. Even as he gave his loyal answer, he knew that he was blustering and lying.

"Tamara, you're uncivilized."

"Of course! Because I speak the truth. I do not pretend."

"I'm anxious for Peter's safety, too."

"Why should you be? He enjoys danger. One cannot spend life wearing oneself out about such people." In his heart, he agreed with her. She was right about Petrel, too. It was not enough, for any normal man. Petrel was only half here, he told himself. Her graceful mind and body moved in Ballfield, dutifully, sweetly. Tamara cut in, completing his thought.

"I think her spirit is a long way away, James. The gipsy told her that, didn't she? She told me things, too. I was pretending only, when I joked about the desk."

Her eyes met his, in challenge. He hardly dared to ask his question. But he must know. "What did she say?"

Tamara looked startled and obstinate.

"No, I won't tell you."

"You must." He caught at her, roughly.

"No, no!" Before he realized the unsuitability of this scene, Tamara had jerked her arm free, and was running up the stairs, with him pounding after her. He caught her at the top of the landing. He trembled, to find her trembling in his hand. She was like a gazelle, with her soft, frightened eyes, and the lithe body. Or a warm, soft bird that he had rescued from beating against an imprisoning window pane. Feeling her pulsating in his hands, gave him a thrill of life and power, and sudden tenderness. Tamara was alive. He did not let her go. She was alive! Petrel was asleep.

"Now will you tell me, Tamara? Don't you realize that I have a right to know?"

She looked up at him, anxiously. "Things are not an idyll between you and Petrel, are they? You are both trying hard, but—"

"Leave Petrel out of it." He was suddenly angry with her. His hands slipped to her wrists. If she was trying to put him against Petrel—Tamara's answer came through angry, defiant tears. He was hurting her.

"How can I, when the gipsy told me that I would live in that house you are building for her, and use the things we have been buying for her. Now you know!"

Tamara flung away from him, faced him. "That is what she told me, and I love you, and I want it to be true. Now tell me what you think of me, that you hate me, that you love Petrel" But I have told you the truth." The next moment he pulled her into his arms.

"Tamara, my dear, don't cry. This is awful!"

"It had to happen, I suppose. I used to laugh at you: then I knew you attracted me. But it didn't seem serious. We've grown into each others lives, just as Petrel has grown out. We can't help it."

"You don't hate me?" she sobbed. She was warm, small, passionate.

"I think I love you."

"But you love Petrel."

"Differently," he said miserably. "It is you that I want, like this, close to me. How the devil am I to tell her? I must, but when I do—she'll go to Peter, in that hell, Tamara. I shall be responsible for cutting her adrift again. We must wait."

"Yes. I don't think she'll notice."

When Petrel joined them they felt guilty, as conspirators. But she seemed scarcely to see them. She told them her news.

(From Our Files)

Fifteen Years Ago
February 27, 1924.

Two residences located within a few blocks of each other, broke out in flames this morning about ten o'clock, at the same time, and loss estimated at $4,500 resulted to the properties. The homes damaged entailed losses to four families, as each were used as double dwellings. The residence owned by Richard Beale, 415 North Harrison, occupied by the Beale family and Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Cain was damaged, the most, the estimated loss being $3,000. A loss of $1,500 was estimated at the home of James DeMoss, 122 West Fourth street, occupied by his family and by Mrs. Ida Quayle.

Dr. Frank M. Sparks of this city was the first automobile owner in Rush county to receive a rebate on his automobile license plate fee, as the result of the state supreme court declaring the 1923 license law unconstitutional, which made it necessary for the secretary of state to refund to automobile owners, who had purchased licenses, the difference between the cost under the old law and the cost under the new.

Fank Reynolds, head of the Reynolds Manufacturing Company of this city, met with a painful accident Monday afternoon at the factory, and is not able to be at his office on account of the affects of the injury. He was holding a pencil in his mouth when a board flew up, and drove the pencil through the back of his throat, cutting his palate and tongue and penetrating the interior of his mouth.

Miss Imogene Megee is ill at her home in West Third street.

A baby boy weighing ten and one-half pounds was born to the wife of Tom Bradley at their home in this city. The baby has been named John Thomas.

A baby girl weighing seven and one-half pounds was born to the wife of Paul Davison, living south of the city, Sunday.

Attorney John A. Titsworth, publisher and managing editor of the "a once" daily, published by the local option committee, has received state wide fame as the result of his achievement. Already he is receiving letters from the leaders of the temperance forces in counties, where special elections will be held, asking that he send them a copy of the miniature daily.

The salons were closed today on account of the special election under the county option law.

Williams Fitzgerald attended the meeting of the Red Line employes in Indianapolis last night.

President In Plea To Labor Leaders

Miami, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—President Roosevelt in a dramatic plea for a "united labor movement," yesterday asked the long struggling CIO and AFL camps to name a committee to negotiate an early peace.

In virtually identical letters to John L. Lewis, chairman of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, he declared: "Labor faces a challenge in finding itself divided into opposing camps, but I am sure that labor can and will meet this challenge with understanding and good will."

New York, Feb. 27 (AP) — Buyers got behind the rail in today's stock market as profits were cashed in most other groups.

DEBTORS HELP DOCTOR BUILD A NEW HOME

Lemon Grove, Calif. (AP)—After six years of an unusual debt-payment system, Dr. Ebon B. McGregor has moved into a substantial two-story dwelling.

Unable to collect his bills in the worst of the depression, the physician wrote some 50 patients suggesting they contribute their labor in building him a house. Not one refused.

The "first shift" did not complete the house, but subsequent calls on delinquent patients gradually finished it.

Since he had fixed his professional fees, he insisted each worker fixed his own "wages" for construction work.

Haynes-Wilson

The First Presbyterian manse in North Morgan street was the scene of simple but impressive wedding Saturday afternoon at two o'clock when Mrs. Wilma Harman Wilson of Oxford and Harry Preston Haynes of Talbot were married. The single ring service was read by the Rev. Gibson Wilson.

Mrs. Haynes was becomingly attired in black broadcloth with white accessories and she carried a white lace handkerchief which belonged to her grandmother, Mrs. Jasepr McConnell. Her flowers were a corsage of blue sweet peas and red rose buds.

The manse was decorated for the occasion with spring flowers. A luncheon was served by Mrs. Lora Beale, hostess at the manse, who also witnessed the wedding.

Mrs. Haynes is the daughter of Mrs. William Harman and Mr. Haynes is the son of Mrs. Charles Haynes. He is engaged in farming and distributing hybrid corn. After a wedding trip throughout the south they will be at home at Talbot.

The bride is a member of the Presbyterian church at Oxford where the Rev. Mr. Wilson formerly was pastor.

That's what the discovery I made at Neff's will remind you of! Their dovedown Mojud Thigh - Mold silk stockings are the most perfect combination of beauty and strength imaginable! They're sheer and beautifully color-cued to fashion, but the secret of their wearability is the four magic lacy strips in the hemline. These strips absorb the strain of your activity — they check garter runs — they hold garters firmly! They make Dovedown Mojud Thigh-Molds your quarantee of lasting leg-loveliness! Go to Neff's for your hosiery, there is a difference.

LEMON GOES LONG WAY

Delphi, Ind. (AP) — Mrs. John Holsinger baked ten lemon pies with the juice of one lemon she brought home from Florida. The lemon weighed two and one-half pounds.

The consumption of oranges, lemons and other citrus fruits has tended to increase in recent years, while the consumption of apples has dropped.

PALESTINE HAS NEW OUTBREAK OF TERRORISM

Haifa, Palestine, Feb. 27 (AP) — Soldiers and police were ordered into a state of alert throughout Palestine today as a new wave of Arab-Jew terrorism, coinciding with a deadlock in the London conference on the Holy Land, brought death to 26 and injuries to 49 persons over the week-end.

Three bomb explosions at the Haifa Jewish market and railroad station left 20 known killed and 37 wounded. In Jerusalem three Arabs were killed by bombs and one Arab and two Jews were slain by snipers. At Jaffa bursting landmines killed one Arab and wounded four.

These disorders brought the casualty toll since the London peace conference opened Feb. 7 to about 130.

Both here and in Jerusalem, police searched damaged buildings and shattered vegetable trucks for bomb fragments likely to give a clue to those responsible for the explosions. Day and night curfew was invoked in Haifa. A landmine exploded on the Tel Aviv-Jaffa railroad just after a train passed, but caused no damage.

Angry and wailing crowds besieged the Haifa hospital seeking relatives among the wounded, most of whom were badly hurt.

The Haifa market place was bombed as crowds gathered for the morning buying and selling. Cries of the wounded split the air. Arabs fled in confusion. Ambulances took the injured to the government hospital. Authorities immediately cordoned off the scene and imposed an indefinite curfew.

The renewal of violence followed Arab celebrations over reports indicating that the British government planned to establish a state in Palestine in which Jews would have only minority status, with Britain giving up her League of Nations mandate over the Holy Land.

In the week following the opening of the London conference on Palestine Feb. 7, disorders caused 53 casualties in the Holy Land. The purpose of the meeting was to bring Jews and Arabs together and permit establishment of a government to which both factions could subscribe.

(During the past two and a half years of strife an estimated 3,000 persons have been killed. Many more have been wounded. The monetary loss has been estimated at high as $50,000,000.

(The Arabs say Britain promised them sovereignty over Palestine early in the World war in order to obtain Arab support for the Allies. Jews point to the 1917 Balfour declaration promising the establishment of a national home for Jews in Palestine.)

In Haifa, two Jews and a policeman were among the wounded. The rest were Arabs.

Meanwhile, Lloyd Paul Stryker, defense counsellor, planned to confer with Hines, stunned and weary after the sweeping verdict of the blue-ribbon jury which convicted him on all 13 counts of a lottery indictment, carrying a maximum penalty of 27 years in prison.

Stryker's first move was expected to be an application for a certificate of reasonable doubt to keep his 62-year-old, white haired client out on bail pending appeal, which might be prolonged for three years through state and federal courts.

Speakers at the afternoon session will include Speaker James M. Knapp of the Indiana House of Representatives and State Senator William Jenner of Paoli, Republican "whip" of the Indiana State Senate. Their talks, dealing briefly with legislative affairs, will be followed by a round table discussion.
